The phenomenon of litigation financing originating in English-speaking countries only recently spread to continental jurisdictions.

The purpose of this conference is to explain the phenomenon from both the legal and funder's perspective through the involvement of the various stakeholders: the arbitral institution, the investor, the funder, the broker, the arbitrator, the lawyer, the expert and in-house counsel.

The most controversial issues will be explored, including moral and ethical issues, and the impact that the phenomenon is having in the landscape of national and international litigation as well as investment arbitration.
